Choice Poetry.

A SHAKSPEARE SONNET.

SONNET, CXLV.

THOSE lips that Love's own hand did make,
Breath'd forth the sound that said I hate,
To me that languish'd for her sake;
But when she saw my woeful state,
Straight in her heart did mercy come,
Chiding that tongue, that ever sweet
Was us'd in giving gentle doom;
And taught it thus anew to greet;
I hate, she alter'd with an end.
That follow'd it as gentle day
Doth follow night, who, like a friend,
From heaven to hell is flown away;
I hate from hate away she threw,
And saved my life, by saying—not you!

HAUNTED HOUSES.

BY H. W. LONGFELLOW.

All houses where in men have lived and died
Are haunted houses. Through the open doors
The harmless phantoms on their errands glide,
With feet that make no sound upon the floors.

We meet them at the doorway, on the stair,
Along the passages they come and go!
Impalpable impressions on the air,
A sense of something moving to and fro.

There are more guests at the table than the hosts
Invited; the illuminated hall
Is thronged with quiet, inoffensive ghosts,
As silent as the pictures on the wall.

The stranger at the fireside can not see
The forms I see, nor hear the sounds I hear;
He but perceives what is; while unto me
All that has been is visible and clear.

We have no title deeds to house or lands;
Owners and occupants of earlier dates,
From graves forgotten stretch their dusty hands
And hold in mortmain still their old estates.

The spirit world around this world of sense
Floats like an atmosphere, and everywhere
Wafts through these earthly mists and vapors dense,
A vital breath of more ethereal air.

Our little lives are kept in equipoise
By opposite attractions and desires;
The struggle of the instinct that enjoys,
And the more noble instinct that inspires.

These perturbations, this perpetual jar
Of earthly wants and aspirations high,
Come from the influence of an unseen star,
An undiscovered planet in our sky.

And as the moon from some dark gate of cloud
Throws o'er the sea a floating bridge of light,
Across whose trembling planks our fancies crowd
Into the realm of mystery and night—

So from the world of spirits there descends
A bridge of light connecting it with this,
O'er whose unsteady floor, that sways and bends
Wander our thoughts above the dark abyss.

Miscellaneous.

HYMEN IN THE DARK.

MUCH has been written and said of Christmas—of its luxurious feasts, lavish gifts, and grotesque gambols, and many stories thereon founded; but the person who fails to detect the following episode a "Christmas Story" rich in development, and one, too, that lays completely in shadow all holiday stories ever before recited, in his judgment of humor we haven't the least confidence. Startling though it may be, it certainly elucidates the fact that the lives of some people are fraught with rare occurrences. Long prefaces, however, are oftentime out of taste—then suffice it to say

"That though we have a somewhat funny scene,
We'll draw wide the curtain and leave no screen

On Christmas night, in the vicinity of a litt'e post village a few miles distant from Nashville a dance was given. It promised to be one of those genuine hilarious breakdowns of "ye olden times," in whose festivities, host, hostess and guests were to partake. Invitations had been issued to all the beaux and belles for miles and miles around, and the affair was to be the grandest of the holidays. Among the guests were a pair of newly-married couples, whose voyage matrimonial had just begun that morning, in a shower of kind wishes and congratulations. We are not too sure but that the ovation was inaugurated for their especial honor and benefit. Be that as it may, night came, moonless but clear. The mansion was illumined with a blaze of light, and jocund with the gayety of its inmates. Soon the musicians began their choicest quadrilles, and the halls and parlors were thronged with the graceful devotees of Terpsichore. The observed of all observers were the lately wedded couples. The bright lights looked down on the fairy-like brides and vainly vied in brilliancy with their sparkling eyes. The dashing grooms excited unlimited envy in the bosom of every swain present; but otherwise everything went as merry as a marriage bell.

At a seasonable hour supper was announced, and such a feast as it was! The wits of the confectioner had been tested in the arrangement and manufacture of the innumerable bon bons and indescribable delicacies. After indulgence in refreshments, the company again resumed their places in the dance and everything glided on as smoothly as ever.

Soon the two brides were called away by the hostess and ushered into the respective chambers assigned them. In due time the grooms followed, having, however, first received somewhat indistinct instructions from the young gentleman of the household as to which apartments they were to occupy, he being at the time engaged in the dance, and supposing that they were well acquainted with the locality of the rooms The lamps had been turned down and the wicks burned low. Without even daring to peep at the plump cherry faces half hid by the snowy pillows, the grooms sprang into bed, and—

At such a point in such a story, it is customary for a modest narrator to draw a vail; but in this instance we are necessarily compelled to draw two vails.

The remainder of the company continued the festivities until a late hour, and the gray dawn was almost peeping over the eastern hills ere the music of the fiddlers ceased, and the dancers, worn and fatigued, one by one stealthily crept away for a few hours.

When the morning did come it bro't with it such a scene of confusion as was never before seen, Don Quixote's furore at the inn alone excepted. From one of the bridal chambers came a loud and prolonged shriek. The drowsy slumberers turned out from all directions—some in dishabille, "some in velvet gowns." Every moment the screaming grew louder. At length some of the bolder ventured to go up and ascertain the cause. Up the steps they rush many wondering what in the mischief is the matter. From the scene of the disturbance they met one of the late happy bridegrooms rushing frantically out. They inquire the reason of the hubbub. Hastily he pushes through the crowd and bangs at the door of the other "party," in search of his wife! In the meanwhile they also have become aroused, and bride number two discovers the terrible faux pas and lends the force of her lungs to the general discord. Up jumps the groom number two and rushes out to meet his equally unfortunate friend. Each had got into the wrong room!

Such a scene as this house then presented it would be hard indeed to describe. That it was the most distressingly awkward matrimonial episode that ever befell a quartette of "souls with but a single thought," may easily be imagined. But the explanation came at last, and was satisfactory to all concerned, we suppose. Here we are content to leave them.

Our sketch partakes not in the least of the fanciful. The details are given exactly as they occurred.—Nashville Banner.

On Going to School.

SCHOOL has begun again. I go to school every day. They won't let you play there. The boys are not allowed to whisper. I don't whisper more than forty times a day. The teacher thinks I am a very good boy. I think so too. To be good is not to be found out. Peter Snuffer was a very good boy, because he could whisper without moving his mouth. I used to call him Muffins. He has left school and works in a butcher shop. He is going to take me to the slaughter house some day.

I learn a good many good things at school. Before I went to school I didn't know half as many tricks as I do now. I have learned to fight. Bill Stubbs said I was a gump. I said he was another. Bill gave me a hit. He called me a 'saw.' I gave him two. He tried to knock me down, and I did tumble. Just then a cop came along. If it had not been for that cop I'd licked Bill. The boys said Bill licked me, but it wasn't so. I slipped down on an orange peel. Besides that I didn't want to hurt Bill. I like to fight with boys I can lick. Boys that like me I don't get in a muss with. I ain't afraid of Bill Stubbs.

I learned some grammar at school, and goggerfee. But I learned to play boys ought to learn only what they have got a taste for. I've got a taste for chewing gum. I've learned a good deal of them.

Ma says we boys are worked too hard at school. She says her children shan't study when they have a headache. I often have a headache when the lessons are hard.

I am in class 9. section Q. In a few months I go to college. I want to go to college, because the boys there carry canes, and have fun and don't speak to little boys, I can go in torchlight processions.

I've been to a good many schools. Someway I change schools very often. The teachers think a change is good for me. Ma says the schools are very poor and boys don't learn much in them. I think so too. But I know a good deal after all. I wan't to go in a store. Pa says I shall. Ma says I shan't. Ma calls me her precious darling, and I must have an education. I'd rather have a row boat. I am sure if I had a row boat and went out every day to the river, I wouldn't have headaches so much. I tell Ma that schools are very bad for the head. I want to ask Ma for an excuse. We have a long lesson in compound multiplication to-morrow and my head begins to feel quite bad. I am,

A FELLOW who came by the railroad, being a stranger, strolled about for some time on the outskirts of a town in search of a barber. He finally discovered one and requested the operator to take off a shilling's worth of hair. The barber trimmed his locks very neatly, soaped up the remainder very handsomely, and then combed and brushed him up till his head looked as if it belonged to some other person than himself. "Are you done?" asked the stranger, as the barber removed the napkin from his neck. "Yes, sir," said the barber, with a low bow. "Are you certain that you took off a shilling's worth?" "Yes, sir; there's a glass; you can look for yourself." "Well," said the stranger, "if you think you have taken a shilling's worth off, I don't know as I have got any change. so you may just take the hair for your trouble." On hearing this, the barber made a jump for the man, whereupon the man made a jump for the door, which not being bolted, he bolted himself.

CAPTURED BY A WOMAN.—The Warren Mail says that a singular incident, and one perhaps without a parallel in history occurred on the 23d inst. Mrs. Rachael D. Wright, of Pittsfield, while visiting her mother on York Hill at the aforementioned date, heard an unusual noise among the chickens, and stepping out to the door saw what she supposed to be a hawk holding a fierce conflict with a sturdy old hen. With scarcely a second thought she ran up and seized the bird by the neck and succeeded in capturing what proved to be a monster American Eagle, measuring six feet six inches from the tip of one wing to the tip of the other. It made no serious resistance, submitting with good grace, as many a strong warrior has done before, to the will of a woman. She took her prize to her house in Pittsfield where it attracts large numbers of curious people, and though seemingly somewhat humiliated, takes a very reasonable view of his imprisonment and haughtily submits to the scrutiny of the public.

Luck.

BY HENRY WARD BEECHER.

THE word luck is too firmly bedded in our language, and belief in the fact expressed by it is too strong to justify an expectation that it will soon become obsolete. Luck is an event good or bad, which befalls a man independently of his own volition. If a man work all day for five dollars, his wages is not considered luck. But if he finds five dollars in the road, that is luck.

If a man aims at an accommodation train, but hits an express train, which has been delayed a little in luck. He has secured what he did not plan for. If the last boat of the season leaves Albany for New York a day sooner than the shipper had calculated, and he loses an opportunity of sending his freight, he exclaims "that is just my luck."

Of the fact itself there can be no doubt. Many disappointments befall men which seem to have no relation to their own agency. Many places of good fortune occur which the recipient did not plan, or look for.

But the cause of luck, thus defined, is another thing. If we could look into men's minds and render clear those obscure and nebulous thoughts that hover there, it would be found probably, that very different notions are entertained about it. Some believe that there are spirits, or sprites, whose power intercalates these events upon the calendar of Nature. Others seem to believe that in the vast realm of Nature events are floating about like motes in sunbeams, and that men accidentally stumble upon them. Some people believe it to be a crook in the grain of things, some men being born and destined to fulfil some mischievous decrees. "Do what they will, they can never escape ill-luck." Were some men's notions analyzed, I should not wonder if it were found they still believe Luck to be a personal being, as Puck, or Ariel who spent their time in playing tricks upon men, good or bad, according to their peculiar fancy.

But dismissing all these notions, there are several pieces of general good or ill luck, which have much to do with the special luck, that befalls men. I count it a piece of prime and admirable luck to be born of parents who had sound physical constitutions, ample brains, well proportioned and balanced, living in moderately prosperous circumstances. Next to this is to be brought up in simplicity, among people kind and just, and under circumstances which require one to exert himself actively, so that he shall never expect to have anything which he does not himself earn. Lastly, [illegible] too proud to do evil and not proud enough to take offense at the common experience of life: as consistent with enterprise, and above all, with unwasting good nature.

This last quality-good nature-is perhaps the most desirable of all, in so far as happiness is concerned. Every one knows that it is sugar in fruit that gives it its palatableness, and that converts its juices into wine. Good nature is to human dispositions what sugar is to grapes.

A robust and cheerful nature hardly knows the difference between good and bad luck. Some things, which extort piteous complaints of bad luck from his neighbors, befall him without exciting more than a moment's attention—just as a healthy man does not feel a chilly gust which sets an invalid into shivers.

Ill luck in petty affairs is only another name for want of foresight, unskillfulness, poor judgment, clumsy-handedness, lack of spring and enterprise. Few men are willing to say that their own blunders, negative or positive, return upon their own heads. Luck to them is a fortunate work. Luck is a word that hides a man's inefficiency from himself, and saves his pride.

Every one of us has lucky and unlucky days. Too much excitement, late hours, late eating, poor sleep, and too little of it, bring on mornings full of depression—blue days in which everybody and everything seem wrong. Everything our hand touches fails. This is a simple case in which respectable dissipation has put the whole instrument by which man works, his brain and nervous system, out of adjustment. His mistakes are no more surprising than would be a mechanic's who worked by a false rule, or a chemist's who measured by incorrect standards.

By and by, rest, diet, and good habits restore the equilibrium, and then comes a sparkling day of good luck. Half the labor produces twice the ordinary results. We meet the very person we desire most to see. Everything goes on rightly. The world is propitious.

In olden times, when necromancers would fill the air with spirits, they had potent spells, cabalistic formula, and various charms by which to evoke and control evil spirits. There is a much shorter and surer way than all that to fill heaven and earth with demons. Put your liver out of order. That is a spell that never fails. Dyspepsia will raise more devils in one day than ever Merlin could in a year.

A good man, in good health, engaged in business for which he is fitted, and contented, will always be in luck.

Poor luck goes with slender judgment, with indolence, with supersensitive pride, with indigestion, with torpid livers, with heedlessness and stupidity.

As all of us have flecks and tints of all these elements, at times, so we all of us have our share of bad luck. The height of ill luck is to be born badly, to live badly, and to die badly.

Let every man blame himself for all his bad luck, and he will find a cure for more than half of it. The rest is imaginary.

A YOUNG man who recently fell in love with a very beautiful young lady, says, that when he ascertained last evening that she reciprocated his passion, he felt as though he was sitting on the roof of a meeting house and every shingle was a Jews harp.

The last Rebel Outrage—A Radical "Sell."

The richest thing out in the shape of a "sell" that has been heard of since "all fools' day" has lately been perpetrated on the Radicals. In the local columns of Fake's Bulletin, published in Galveston, Texas, the following item appeared a few days since:

"A cargo of Coolies recently arrived in this city, consigned to merchants by ordinary bills of lading as merchandise, and are announced to be sold at auction to pay freight and charges. Two-thirds of the cargo are females."

The Philadelphia North American, Forney's Press, and other truly loyal journals were straightway thrown into a spasm of excitement. They painted glowing pictures of the horrors of this sale. The females were represented to be beautiful, and the terrible fate in store for them was dwelt upon in terms calculated to excite the dullest imagination. Congressional intervention was loudly demanded, and the President was reminded that the "fourteenth amendment" provided for these "helpless creatures." He was called upon to visit the vengeance of the offended majesty of the violated law upon the Texan barbarians. The remarks of the North American were in the following fervent strain:

"This is chattel slavery. These Chinese were put upon an ordinary bill of lading like so many chests of tea, and freight was charged upon them as upon all kinds of goods. The worst feature in the affair is that two-thirds of these unhappy Chinese are females, some of them beautiful. Of course they are bought in China on speculation and sent to Texas to seek a market, just as the same kind of live stock of a different race used to be sent to New Orleans. This development is nothing new in regard to the Chinese coolie trade, except in so far as the importation of women goes. That is a novelty.

"We trust that our brethren of the press will have no hesitaion in denouncing the movement in the terms it deserves, and in demanding redress from the national authorities, since it is only by constant vigilance that we can counternet the efforts of these southern communities to sneak back again into slavery by some under hand way."

Having enjoyed the effect of his joke, the local editor of the Bulletin announced that the Coolies in question were "cast-iron figures, designed as signs for cigar, tobacco, tea, and grocery stores." We believe not one of the Radical journals which went into spasms over the supposed outrage has yet informed its readers how it came to be sold so badly. to pass a law at the present session to protect Radical newspapers from being gulled by rebel reporters.

An Awkward Mistake.

AN office seeker, travelling in Texas, on an electioneering trip, tells a bit of his experience as followe:

"Well I put up with a first-rate good natured fellow that I met at a billiard table. I went in and was introduced to his wife, a fine, fat woman—looked as though she lived on laffin', her face was so full of fun. After awhile, in comes three or four children laughin' and skipping as merry as crickets. There was no candle lit, but I started for my saddle-bags, in which I put a lot of sugar candy for the children as I went along.

"Come here," said I, "you little rogue, and tell me what your name is."

The oldest one came to me and said: "my name's Peter Smith."

"And what's your name?"

"Bob Smith."

The next said his name was Bill Smith, and the fourth said his name was Tommy Smith. I gave 'em sugar candy, and Mrs. Smith was so tickled that she laughed all the time. Mr. Smith looked on, but did'nt say much.

"Why," says I, "Mrs. Smith, I would not take a good deal for them four boys, if I had 'em; they are so beautiful and sprightly."

"No," said she, laffin,' "I set a good deal on 'em, but we spoil 'em too much."

"No, no," says I, "they're rale well behaved children, and by gracious," says I, pretending to be startled by a striking resemblance between the boys and the father, I looked at Mr. Smith. "I never did see anything equal to it," says I, "your own eyes, mouth, forehead, and perfect picture of hair, sir." tapping the oldest on the pate. I thought Mrs. Smith would have died a laffin' at that, her arms fell down at her side, and she shook the whole house, she was so well pleased.

"Do you think so Col. Jones," said she, looking towards Mr. Smith, and I thought she'd go off in a fit.

"Yes." says I, "I do raelly."

"Ha, ha, haw!" says Mr. Smith, kind o' half laffin', "you're too hard on me now, with your jokes."

"I ain't joking at all," says I, "they are handsome children, and do look wonderfully like you."

Just then a gal brought a light in and I'll be darned if the little brats did'nt turn out to be niggers—every one of them! and their hair was as curly as the blackest nigger's! Mr. and Mrs. Smith never had any, and they sort of petted them niggers as playthings.

I never felt as streaked as I did when I found out how things stood. If I had'nt kissed the nasty things I could have got over it; but kissing 'em showed that I was in earnest. Though I was soft soaping 'em all the while, how to get over the scrape I didn't know Mrs. Smith laughed so hard when she saw how confused I was that she almost suffocated.

A little while afterwards, there was a whole family of relations arrived from the city, and turned the matter off; but the next morning I could see that Mr. Smith did not like the remembrance of what I said, and I don't believe he'll vote for me when election comes. I 'spect Mrs. Smith kept the old fellow under the joke for some time.

IT is complimentary to call a baker a big loafer.

A Frightful Tale.

A private letter received from near Byhalia, Mississippi, yesterday, contained a few particulars of a horrid affair brought to light a few days ago.

Tom Still, a colored man employed as a foreman on Mrs. Bronson's plantations, lived with his wife, several hundred yards from Mrs. B.'s residence. A negro, known as Edmond Tuntsall, was a frequent visitor, and it had long been suspected by Still that improper relations existed between his wife and the pretended friend. It was evident that Mrs. Still was much more interested in Edmond than her husband, and the latter not having the courage to confront the destroyer of his peace with his suspicions, simply sought to protect himself against any effort to put him out of the way. One morning last week, Still was missing from the plantation. Mrs. Bronson's inquiries elicited from Mrs. Still that he went out to feed some hogs on another portion of the place the night before, and had not since been heard of. Mrs. Bronson doubted the story on its own merits, and the evident confusion of the woman, added to what was already known of the situation of affairs, caused her to suspect foul play. Several servants were summoned, and a search was instituted. After two or three hours spent fruitlessly in different portions of the plantation, a member of the party was attracted by the presence of some fresh earth at the head of a ravin about fifty yards flom Still's cabin. In a moment the startling discovery was made of some one's knees protruding. The fresh, loose earth was hastily removed, and Still's remains, horribly mutilated, were dragged out on the ground. His head and face contained a number of frightful gashes, evidently inflicted with an ax. Mrs. Bronson at once ordered the arrest of Mrs. Still and Edmond Tunstall, as the murderers. Upon being taken in custody by the negroes, Mrs. Still made a full confession of guilt. She said she loved Tuntsall, and that her husband was in the way of her happiness. They had long ago determined to rid themselves of him. Recently she sought to kill him by putting poison in his coffee; but Still, who seemed to suspect the design, complained that the coffee was bitter, and threw it into the fire. On the night of the murder Edmond came to the house, it being understood that Still was to be removed. Outside he secreted an ax. After being outside a short time Mrs. Still found a pretext to send her husband out into the yard, Edmond stealthily followed, ax in hand. Suddenly increasing his pace, he overtook the unsuspecting victim, and with to the ground. Other blows followed, until he believed the bloody work done, Mrs. Still joined him, and together they carried the mangled body to the ravine. It was placed on the ground until a grave, between one and a half and two feet deep, could be prepared. But while forcing the victim in it the murderers were startled at discovering that life was not extinct. The body moved, and sounds came from the mouth of the supposed corpse. Nevertheless, Still was crammed into the hole; and once in Edmond jumped upon it, and, in that manner, forced it below the surface. With their hands the partners in crime scooped in sufficient earth to cover the remains of the murdered husband and friend; and then, hastening to his cabin, passed the night together! The confession was made with as much unconcern as though involving a mere peccadillo, and Edmond offered no contradiction. It almost frenzied the colored auditors, who insisted upon wreaking summary vengeance. But Mrs. Bronson interposed, and instead of dangling on adjacent limbs of a neighboring tree, they were manacled and sent to the Holly Springs jail.

A SINGULAR INCIDENT.—Our attention has been directed to the following singular incident of the late war, which is as remarkably strange as it is said to be true: A correspondent of a southern journal writes: "There was a man of Company A, Twenty-seventh North Carolina troops, named George P. Piner, who went into the fight with a small Testament in his pocket. A ball struck the book and penetrated as far as the chapter of Matthew, 21st and 22nd verses. It merely blackened that passage, glanced off, and left the man uninjured. The verses read: 'Ye have heard that it was said of them of old time, Thou shalt not kill, and whoever shall kill shall be in danger of the judgment, and whoever is angry with his brother without just cause, shall be in danger of judgment.' The man said 'that Yankee ball was like the devil; it had to turn its course when met by scriptural opposition.' "

BORAX.—One of the best bleaching and emollient agents that can be employed in washing either the person, or clothing, is common refined borax. It should be dissolved in hot water at the rate of half a pound to ten gallons; a great saving in soap, is effected by its use. The borax should be pulverized first. It may be procured in the form of crystals at any druggist's, and can be powdered fine with a rolling pin, or hammer, it will not injure the most delicate fabrics, and lace or other fine tissues may be washed in a solution of borax, with manifest advantage to their color and consistency.

A HINT TO PLOWMEN.—A. C. Thomas, of Wisconsin says in the Western Rural, that if you wish to plow a land ten rods wide, instead of striking out a land that width, take one-half that width, pace off five rods from the end and set in your plow and plow to within five rods of the other end and stop; now back harrow as usual the required width and then turn a square corner at the end, observing to have the end furrow on a parallel line with the outside. By this means you will always turn around on the stubble, thus leaving the land untrodden, and instead of 'dead furrows' at the corners you will have 'ridges.' "

Democratic Caucus for U. S. Senator.

THIS body met on Tuesday morning, and resulted in the nomination of Wm. A. Wallace, of Clearfield county.

The result was accomplished by hard boring steadily applied from the commencement of the session. To our personal knowledge a large part of the members regretted that they had committed themselves to Wallace, and thought he ought not to be a candidate, but felt bound by their word.

The victory is a barren one to Wallace, as it confers no power, but it was an indignity to our present Senator, which was not deserved, and will not tend to harmony in the future.

We call particular attention to the votes of the Luzerne members.

History of Pennsylvania Volunteers.

HON. SAMUEL P. BATES, State Historian, has put us under lasting obligations, by placing on our table the first volume of the "History of Pennsylvania Volunteers," a book of 1327 pages. It is intended to complete the work in [illegible] before us is exceedingly interesting, especially to a participant in the late war. It gives an accurate list of all the officers and soldiers in the regiments spoken of, together with a statement of the time of muster-in and out, &c., and a succinct account of the operations of each regiment and battery. Of course many will feel that the history of their organizations are not minute enough, or that their individual acts have been permitted to go unrecorded; but when the vastness of the enterprise, and the limited time and space at the command of Mr. Bates is considered, it will be seen that he has given each regiment and company all the space possible. Having over 200 regiments to incorporate in the work, besides the history of a large number of detached or independent commands, with the name, rank and other data of each soldier, the wonder is that he has given as much detail as there is.

As a matter of course Mr. Bates had to depend upon statements furnished him by the officers and soldiers for data in the compilation of his history.—Though liable to abuse, the source after all is the most trust-worthy. No person would wilfully misstate an occurrence to which as a rule there would be many witnesses, and if he did, testimony from other sources would probably correct the error. From the examination we have made we should say that the work is unusually accurate, and will be authority on all subjects on which it treats.

Its mechanical execution is not the best. Many of the pages are pale, while others have too much "color." In many places the "register" is poor, and numerous typographical errors occur.

Upon the whole, it is a work of exceeding importance,—in fact the most valuable published by the State for many years. It will become any library, and to the military student it is indispensable. We shall look with impatience for the succeeding volumes.

NEWSPAPER DIRECTORY!—We have been favored with an advance sheet of a new and useful work now being published by Messrs. G. P. Rowell & Co., the New York Advertising Agents, being a complete American Newspaper Directory. It is a compilation much needed, since nothing of the kind having any claims to completeness has ever been published.

Messrs. Rowell & Co have spared no pains or expense to make the forthcoming work complete. We understand the book will be a handsome octavo volume of about 800 pages, bound in dark cloth, and sold for five dollars per copy.

As the publishers are Advertising Agents their issuing a work containing so much information, usually jealously guarded by those in that business, shows that they are confident of their ability to be of service to advertisers, or they would not so readily place in their hands the means of enabling every one to communicate direct with publishers if they so desire.

Auditor General's Report—1868.

THIS is one of the most important documents issued by the State authorities, and we are sure if the people would only examine its contents, they would become so disgusted with the party in power as to hurl them neck and heels from the places they now disgrace. We propose to give them in a few articles, some stubborn facts. The plundering, stealing and mal-administration are continually growing worse. For instance:

Expenses of Government,	1866	$668,909 63
" " "	1867	802,878 58
" " "	1868	845,539 89
An increase since the close of the war of		$176,630 26

and that too, in the teeth of a fact asserted by the late State Treasurer, in his report for the year ending the 30th of Nov. 1867, that "by proper attention the expenditures could be reduced $200,000 below what they were during 1867, and all necessary expenses be provided for."

Now a large amount of these aggregate "expenses of Government" are pure plunder. For instance, in the above sum is the item of postage. Look at the figures:

Postage Senate,	1866	$ 5,489 99
" "	1867	8,828 05
" "	1868	13,125 73

Making for the year 1868, a postal expenditure for each Senator of $397.75. Enough to pay the postage on 13,258 letters, and which, if all expended for letter postage or for radical electioneering documents at three cents apiece, would scatter over the State 437,514 of them.

Postage House,	1866	$14,212 21
" "	1867	16,463 46
" "	1868	19,350 04

Making for the year 1868, a Legislative expenditure, for the item of postage alone, of thirty-two thousand four hundred and seventy-five dollars and seventy-seven cents. No man believes that sum to have been honestly expended for that purpose.

FOR THE COLUMBIAN.

The Radicals Say, "Let us have Peace."

TRULY we all want peace. But we want something more than peace on their conditions; we require them to return to principles of economy and retrenchment in our national expenditures; to ease our Nation of its burden of debt and taxation which has been brought upon us. This is what they pledged themselves to do, yet in the face of all this the Sec'y of the Treasury asks Congress to appropriate $303,000,000 for the next fiscal year ending June the 30th 1870. As a poor working man I for one am not satisfied with such peace conditions in time of profound peace, with the exception of a few negro insurrections, and murders, and other outrages committed upon poor defenseless women and children, which is to be attributed to Radical misrule. Here is another proof of their misrule and extravagance.

It is our depreciated currency. In 1862 during the month of Dec., the darkest period of the war, when the civilized world expected the disruption of the Union, the price of Gold was 128¾ to 134; yet in the face of all this, since that Congress, and Grant elected and the party triumphant, in 1868 in the month of Dec., Gold ranged from 134¾ to 136¾. Let us have Peace. Bah!

Does this look like returning to specie payment? Does it look like raising our depreciated currency to its par value with gold and silver? It looks as if we were overwhelmed in a slough of despondency, and beyond the reach of national redemption, with negro rule in the south, almost equaling the reign of terror in France, and squalid poverty and pauperism in the North. Charitable institutions founded in the year 1846 attest to these statements, as regards the condition of the people in New York, and this is attributable to Radical misrule. Look at happy Massachusetts with her great almshouses, one at Tewksbury with her 750 paupers crowded under one roof, "Why," said General Buttler in his speech on this subject, "this whole commonwealth felt outraged, because there came a report from Kansas that six or eight men had been killed, and they all wept over the imaginary wrongs of Kansas, and yet three hundred children have died like dogs in kennel in Massachusetts almshouses. England with her great Bastil could never present a worse picture."

Workingmen how goes the election? "Let us have Peace."

A WORKING MAN.

SINGULAR CASE.—Carrie Feister, a little daughter of Reuben Feister, of this Borough, when but 7 months old, swallowed a diaper pin. No one was present when she swallowed it, but the fact that the pin was missing and the child was seized with choking spells and for twelve hours remained in a critical condition, left no doubt on the minds of the family as to what had become of the pin. She, however, partially recovered at the time, but from that time until the present her health has been delicate. At intervals she has been quite sick, coughing and throwing up considerable corruption. During the past summer it was thought that the child had gone into consumption, and was so ill that her recovery was regarded as next to impossible. She rallied again, however, and although far from well, was able to be about. On last Sunday week, Dec. 27th, she was seized with a violent fit of coughing which lasted for some time. Finally she suddenly put her fingers into her mouth and drew forth the missing pin. The pin is about two inches in length, with a head 5-16 of an inch long and ½ of an inch in circumference. It is black with rust and when coughed up was covered with corruption. Carrie is now nearly 9 years old, so that this pin has been embedded in her lungs (as it is believed) about 8 years and 4 months, all this time abscesses forming and breaking, and rendering her life miserable. We are glad to add that since its removal her health has been materially improved. She is an interesting little girl, and it is to be hoped that after so much suffering she may soon be restored to health.—Muncy Luminary.

Judge Elwell.

WE publish the annexed correspondence of the Patriot & Union. It is a deserved tribute to one of our purest Judges, and by a few weeks anticipates what we had intended to say on that subject.

LAPORTE, Dec. 21, '68.

EDITORS MORNING PATRIOT:—There is one department of our political system that, in all its parts, should be guarded with jealous care—I refer to the Judiciary. Let us have competent upright judges, and we have a great safeguard against the machinations of bad men and the enforcement of evil legislation. The supreme Bench of Pennsylvania has been an honor to our State and people from its earliest organization. Tilghman and Gibson are quoted on both sides of the Atlantic, and have had, if not their equals, their approximates, at all times in the Supreme Court in banc. Its record abounds with profound and luminous opinions elucidating the great principles of liberty and law.

A Justice Reed, under the cracking whip of a Loyal League, may yield to superannuated weakness, and, forgetful of his high office, loan its very ermine to partisan uses. Mr. Justice Strong, oblivious of his obligations to the party whose principles and organization lifted him to judicial eminence, may, obedient to the behest of Yankeedom and Broad street, resign at a time when a demagogue Governor can make an obnoxious appointment, and postpone for a twelve month an expression of the will of the people, and yet we still have a hope—yea, a faith—that we can perpetuate the reputation of our Supreme Court for learning, patriotism and integrity.

When the next Democratic State Convention shall come together, let me suggest a name well worthy their most careful consideration, the Hon. Wm. Elwell, of Columbia county. He is marked at every stage of his manhood as the careful, studious, able, experienced and successful lawyer; and in every relation of life not only stands without reproach, but commands the profound respect of his cotemporaries. On the bench, which he so well adorns, his modesty, firmness, ready tact and acknowledged ability, place him with scarce a peer in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Brought up in the political school of Thomas Jefferson, Judge Elwell, in 1845, while chairman of the Judiciary Committee in the House of Representatives, established a lasting claim to the gratitude of his fellow citizens by reporting and carrying through the Legislature, the Bill abolishing imprisonment for debt, thus expunging from our statutes a feature of barbarism disgraceful to a Christain people and inconsistent with the spirit of our free institutions, and ever after releasing the poor and unfortunate from the loss of liberty as the penalty of their misfortunes.

Subsequently, whilst his infatuated neighbors in the 13th Congressional district were, with strange unanimity, yielding their long established political faith to the plausible herisies of a reckless demagogue, Judge Elwell, with the courage of strong conviction, and the dignity inspired by truth, firmly headed the diminished band of patriots who still adhered to the political faith of their fathers, and continued to defend the great constitutional principles upon which rested the integrity of the Union the liberties of the people, and the prosperity of the nation. Such is the man whom we commend to the warm support of every voter in this Commonwealth who may still desire purity in our courts as the only remaining bulwark against the growing corruption which now invades every department of our Government, and which, if not checked, must eventually convert the blessings of self-government into a curse intolerable to a people whose moral turpitude will drive them for protec[illegible] of despotism.

SULLIVAN.

REPRESENTATION IN CONGRESS.—Mr. Buckalew introduced a bill to modify the system of representation of the people in Congress. It is as follows:

Be it enacted, &c., That in elections for the choice of Representatives to the Congress of the United States, whenever more than one representative is to be chosen from a State each elector of such State duly qualified, shall be entitled to a number of votes equal to the number of Representatives to be chosen from the State, and may give all such votes to one candidate, or may distribute them equally or unequally among the greater number of candidates, and the candidates highest in vote upon the return shall be declared elected.

On motion of Mr. Buckalew, the bill was referred to a select committee to be appointed by the President pro tem, who at Mr. Buckalew's request is one of the Committee.

The President announced as the select committee, Messrs. Buckalew, Anthony Ferry, Morton, Warner, Rice and Wade.

WE have upon our Book Table, the prospectus of a most valuable work, hitherto unpublished, to be entitled "The Spanish Conquest of New Mexico." It was written by the author, Col. W. W. H. Davis, during his residence in the country, and has received the warm approval of Mr. Bancroft, the Historian. It covers a period of one hundred and seventy-six years, and presents the most valuable information, which has never before been presented to the public. It is proposed to publish the work by subscription at the price of $3 00. Its author is well known as the editor of the Doylestown Democrat, which is a sufficient guarantee that it will be well written. Orders may be sent to Col. Davis, at Doylestown, Pa.

THE Clearfield County Democratic Convention has instructed for Wm. A. Wallace for Governor, and Judge Barrett for Judge of the Supreme Court. McCullough of that county desired the nomination for Speaker of the House, and Mr. Wallace has been Chairman of the Standing committee for several years, and has just received the nomination for U. S. Senator. If there is anything else wanting up in Clearfield, we hope to be informed in time.

NEW COUNTIES.—For the information of all concerned we publish Article XII, of the Constitution of the State of Pennsylvania:

"No county shall be divided by a line cutting off over one-tenth of its population (either to form a new county or otherwise,) without the express assent of such county, by a vote of the electors; nor shall any new county be established containing less than four hundred square miles."

THE United American Mechanics' New Hall (in the Brower block) will be dedicated on Thursday, January the 28th next at 2 o'clock P. M. Rev. E. W. Kirby of Milton and other eminent speakers are expected to be present. The public are respectfully invited to attend.

MR. O'NEIL of Luzerne has had a bill passed through the House to sell the old jail, and to authorize the Commissioners to borrow money at seven per cent to complete the new one.

OVERTON—ROSSEEL.—At Wysox Parsonage, on Jan. 6, by Rev. J. A. Rosseel father of the bride, assisted by the Rev. Wm. Harris, Edward Overton, jr., of Towanda, to Miss Colette Therese Rosseel.

It is said that men imperceptibly take upon themselves the character of those with whom they are much in contact. Our friend Col. Overton is an example in point. As Register in Bankruptcy for this Congressional District he has been much associated with that unfortunate class of men known as bankrupts, and the mania has seized him, and as the surest, quickest method of accomplishing the result he has got married, and has made the party aforesaid his Assignee.

The Col. was a brave officer of the old 50th Reg't, and though rebel shot and shell failed to touch his heart, an arrow from Cupid's bow has transfixed it, and he has been led a captive to the hymeneal altar. Our sympathies are with him.

Deaths.

LUCE.—Nov. 21st, 1868, at her residence in Loo[illegible] Luce, in the 31st year of her age.

OBITUARY.—Though young and hopeful of life, death was no terror to her. Two years since she bowed to the authority of Jesus, and united with the Methodist Church, and continued an acceptable and faitful member of that church until her death. It is a great consolation to her relatives and friends in this painful separation to know that she lived a pious and devoted life as a christian, and that when the messenger of death called for her she was ready to go. She gave full satisfaction to all present at that solemn hour, of strong faith in the Lord, and entire resignation to his will. She showed the fullest confidence that He would conduct her safely through the Jordan of death. And in view of the happy and enchanting prospects beyond its turbid waters, she endured her sufferings with great patience. Her mind was calm and her hope strong; she departed this life in peace and in full assurance of a happy future beyond the grave. She made home happy and beautiful, and her name, as it trembles thro' the heart of her sorrowing family and friends, will call up memories of all that was best and brightest of earth to them. May God give her sorrowing children, brothers, sisters and mother grace to regain their loss. Weep not for she suffers not; no ills there, no sorrows nor crying; neither sickness nor death. Peaceful and sweet are the slumbers of the loved one.

EXHUBERANT HEALTH

Is a blessing vouchsafed to few. Even those who have been favored by nature with strong constitutions and vigorous frames are apt to neglect the precautions necessary to preserve these precious endowments. Indeed as a rule, the more healthy and robust a man is the more liberties he is inclined to take with his own physique. It is some consolation to the naturally weak and feeble to know that they can be so invigorated and built up proper use of the means which science has placed at their disposal, as to have a much better chance of long life and exemptions from disease and pain, than the most athletic of their fellows who are foolish enough to suppose themselves invulnerable, and act accordingly.

It is not too much to say that more than half the people of the civilized world need an occasional tonic, to enable them to support the strain upon their bodies and minds, which the fast life of this restless age occasions. In fact, a pure wholesome, unexciting tonic is the grand desideratum of the busy millions, and they have the article in HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. It is a staminal medicine, i. e., it imparts permanant strength to weak systems and invigorates delicate constitutions. Its reputation and its sales have steadily increased. Competitive preparations have been introduced ad libitum, and as far as the public is concerned ad nauseum, in the hope of rivaling it; but they have all either perish in the attempt, or been left far in the rear. It has been the great MEDICAL SUCCESS of the present century and, it is quite certain that no proprietary medicine in this country is as widely known, or as generally used.

Ten lightning presses, running incessantly (Sundays excepted,) the whole year through, barely supply the demand for the Illustrated Almanac, in which the nature and uses of the preperation are set forth, the circulation now being over five millions a year.

NOTES.

Proposals must be to carry the mail with "celerity, certainty, and security," using the terms of the law, and they must be guarantied, by two responsible persons, certified to as such by a postmaster or judge of a court of record.

No pay will be made for trips not performed, and for each of such omissions not satisfactorily explained three times the pay of the trip may be deducted. For arrivals so far behind time as to break connection with depending mails, and not sufficiently excused, one-fourth of the compensation for the trip is subject to forfeiture. Fines will be imposed, unless the delinquency be satisfactorily explained, for neglecting to take the mail from or into a post office; for suffering it to be injured, destroyed, robbed, or lost; and for refusing, after demand, to convey the mail as frequently as the contractor runs, or is concerned in running, vehicles on the route. The Postmaster General may annul the contract for disobeying the post office laws, or the instructions of the Department. He may alter the schedule of departures and arrivals, and also order an increase of service by allowing therefor a pro rata increase on the contract pay. He may also curtail or discontinue the service in whole or in part, at a proportionate decrease of pay, allowing as full indemnity to the contractor one month's extra compensation on the amount of service dispensed with, and a pro rata compensation for the service retained and continued. Bids should be addressed to the "Second Assistant Postmaster General," superscribed "Proposals, State of Pennsylvania," and sent by mail.

For forms of proposal, &c., and other information, see advertisement of Oct. 31, 1867, and of this date, in pamphlet form, at the principal post offices.

ALEX. W. RANDALL,
Postmaster General.

THE ONLY LADY'S BOOK IN AMERICA.

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK
For 1869.

THE CHEAPEST OF LADIES' MAGAZINES,
Because it is the Best!

The friend of women, the arbiter of fashion, the encourager and publisher of the best literature of the day, the pattern from which all others copy. The best writers, in the literary world will contribute to the pages of the Lady's Book during the year 1869.

Marion Harland, Authoress of "Alone," "Hidden Path," "Moss Side," "Nemesis," and "Miriam" Will contribute a story every month. Our former efficient corps of writers has alone been retained.

The O. FOGY papers will be continued.

BEAUTIFUL STEEL PLATES.

Of these the Lady's Book contains fourteen each year, superior (we challenge comparison) to any published in this county, either in book or periodical.

OUR FASHION PLATES.

The original double fashion-plates will be continued. Model Cottages.—The only magazine in this country that gives these designs is the Lady's Book. Drawing Lessons.—In this we are also alone. Original Music.—Godey's is the only magazine in which music prepared expressly for it appears. We have also a Children's, a Horticultural, and a Health department.

Godey's invaluable receipts upon every subject, for the Boudoir, Nursery, Kitchen, House, and Laundry.

Tinted Engravings.—This is a series of engravings that no one has attempted but ourselves. They give great satisfaction.

Ladies' Fancy Work Department.—Some of the designs in this department are printed in colors, in a style unequaled.

☞ The money must all be sent at one time for any of the clubs, and additions may be made to clubs at club rates.

☞ Canada subscribers must send 24 cents additional for every subscription to the Lady's Book, and 12 cents for either of the other magazines, to pay the American postage.

How to Remit.—In remitting by Mail, a Post-office Order or a Draft, on Philadelphia or New York, payable to the order of L. A. Godey, is preferable to bank notes, as, should the Order or Draft be lost or stolen, it can be renewed without loss to the sender. If a Draft or a Post-office Order cannot be procured, send United States or National Bank notes. Address

L. A. GODEY,
N. E. Corner Sixth and Chestnut Sts. Phila'a.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

MUCH has been sung of the "Maid with Golden Hair." No song, however, has yet been able to make that color a popular one for any considerable length of time. Light red, faded or sandy hair are equally under the ban of public opinion. We are happy to announce to our readers who desire to change those colors, that three applications of Ring's Vegetable Ambrosia will give them beautiful auburn tresses possessing all that soft, lustrous appearance so desirable in the chief adornment of Female beauty. 1m,

To Physicians.

NEW YORK, August 15th, 1867.

Allow me to call your attention to my Preparation of Compound Extract Buchu. The component parts are Buchu, Long Leaf, Cubebs, Juniper Berries.

MODE OF PREPARATION,—Buchu, in vacuo, Juniper Berries, by distillation, to form a fine gin, Cubebs extracted by displacement by liquor obtained from Juniper Berries, containing very little sugar, a small proportion of spirit, and more palatable than any now in use. The active properties are by this mode extracted.

Buchu, as prepared by Druggists generally, is of a dark color. It is a plant that emits its fragrance; the action of a flame destroys this (its active principle), leaving a dark and glutinous decoction. Mine is the color of ingredients. The Buchu in my preparation predominates; the smallest quantity of the other ingredients are added, to prevent fermentation; upon inspection, it will be found not to be a Tincture, as made in Pharmacopœa, nor is it a Syrup—and therefore can be used in cases where fever or inflammation exists. In this, you have the knowledge of the ingredients and the mode of preparation.

Hoping that you will favor it with a trial, and that upon inspection it will meet with your approbation,

With a feeling of confidence,
I am, very respectfully,
H. T. HELMBOLD,

Chemist and Druggist of 16 Years' Experience in Philadelphia, and now located at his Drug and Chemical Warehouse, 594 Broadway, New York.

[From the largest Manufacturing Chemists in the World.]

"I am acquainted with Mr. H. T. Helmbold; he occupied the Drug Store opposite my residence, and was successful in conducting the business where others had not been equally so before him. I have been favorably impressed with his character and enterprise.

WILLIAM WEIGHTMAN,
Firm of Powers & Weightman, Manufacturing Chemists, Ninth and Brown Streets, Philadelphia.

Helmbold's Fluid Extract Buchu, for weakness arising from indiscretion. The exhausted powers of Nature which are accompanied by so many alarming symptoms, among which will be found, Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Memory, Wakefulness, Horror of Disease, or Forebodings of Evil; in fact, Universal Lassitude, Prostration, and inability to enter into the enjoyments of society.

The Constitution, once affected with Organic Weakness, requires the aid of Medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which Helmbold's Extract Buchu invariable does. If no treatment is submitted to, Consumption or Insanity ensues.

Helmbold's Fluid Extract Buchu, in affections peculiar to Females, is unequaled by any other preparation, as in Chlorosis, or Retention, Painfulness, or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrus State of the Uterus and all complaints incident to the sex, whether arising from habits of dissipation, imprudence, in, or the decline or change of life.

Helmbold's Fluid Extract Buchu and Improved Rose Wash will radically exterminate from the system diseases arising from habits of dissipation, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience or exposure; completely superseding those unpleasant and dangerous remedies, Copaiva and Mercury, in all these diseases.

Use Helmbold's Fluid Extract Buchu in all diseases of these organs, whether existing in male or female, from whatever cause originating, and no matter of how long standing. It is pleasant in taste and odor, "immediate" in action, and more strengthening than any of the preparations of Bark or Iron.

Those suffering from broken-down or delicate constitutions, procure the remedy at once.

The reader must be aware that, however slight may be the attack of the above diseases, it is certain to affect the bodily health and mental powers.

All the above diseases require the aid of a Diuretic. Helmbold's Extract Buchu is the great Diuretic.

☞ Sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. Price $1.25 per bottle, or six bottles for $6.50. Delivered to any address. Describe symptoms in all communications. Address H. T. Helmbold, Drug and Chemical Warehouse, 594 Broadway, N. Y.

None are genuine unless done up in steel-engraved wrapper, with fac-simile of my Chemical Warehouse, and signed. H. T. HELMBOLD.

The Columbian.

BLOOMSBURG, FRIDAY, JAN. 29, 1869.

WE are under obligations to Senator Jackson and Representative Scott for valuable Legislative documents.

NOTWITHSTANDING the large number of houses erected in town the last year, dwellings are still in demand, and large rents are asked and received.

JOHN VANLIEW has our thanks for a missing number of the Columbian, John Walter of this place also has been kind enough to give us No. 35 of the Bloomsburg Democrat.

THE Baptists of this place have began a successful revival. There are also protracted meetings going on at the Methodist and Lutheran churches, from which much good may be expected.

Go and hear Cullis at the Court House Monday night. Come from the neighboring towns and villages with your lovers and sweet-hearts, by loads and sled-loads. Teachers, students, all are interested and can gather instruction.

WE are informed that the Revs'. A. H. Irvine and U. Swandle, are holding a very successful protracted meeting in Light Street. Some forty-five have professed conversion. As many as twenty-seven have presented themselves for prayer in one night.

A FOOLISH report obtained circulation in Schuylkill county to the effect that a man was shot in an attempt to break in or out of the Bloomsburg jail, lately. No such attempt was made, and no man was shot. Every thing is, and has been quiet. There is no feeling or excitement, and neither the public good nor the public peace will be sacrificed.

WE see by the Legislative Record that Senator Jackson has been placed on the important Committees of Finance and Federal Relations and made Chairman of the Committee to compare bills. Hon. Geo. Scott has been placed on the following Committees: Federal Relations, Military, and Municipal Corporations.

THE NEW COUNTY.—A number of citizens living in the upper part of our County, are circulating petitions favoring the erection of a new county out of the north-western part of Columbia. The County seat we presume would be at Benton or 'Zeke Cole's. How much strength there is in the movement we have not ascertained.

ENTERPRISING.—The organ of Radicalism in this county "could not find room" for Geary's Message, and its readers had to depend on the COLUMBIAN for it, which they borrowed from their Democratic neighbors. Was our neighbor ashamed of the Message, or did he fear his readers would not have the patience to read it.

DON'T fail to go and hear Prof. Cullis' famous lecture, "The Idol of Modern Times," at the Court House on next Monday evening. Doors open at the first ringing of the bell. Admission 25 cents: reserved seats 50 cents. All of our cotemporaries speak of the Lecture in the highest terms, and the lecturer enjoys a wide reputation.

WE would call special attention to the communication in another column signed "A Working Man." We give it without alteration or amendment. It is written by a laboring man—one who has always been a Republican, and who up to this time never voted the Democratic ticket. It is a strong appeal to his own class, and should be read by them, without regard to party.

THE important duties of the County Auditors have just been concluded, and in a few days their statement of the receipts and expenditures of the county, for 1868, will be laid before the Court, and ordered to be published. Our citizens can then examine the matter, item by item, and judge if the whole is correct and proper. We venture to say that not a dollar was misspent or misapplied. The Auditors and Commissioners are honest men and faithful officers.

AN IMPORTANT BUSINESS CHANGE.—M. P. Lutz, now doing business in Wilkes Barre has leased the Store room in the Exchange Hotel now occupied by Mr. A. J. Sloan, for five years from the first of next April. He will also purchase such goods as Mr. Sloan may have at that time.

We welcome Mr. Lutz into our midst. We know him to be an active, energetic young man, deserving the support of our citizens. He is well known to many of our citizens having been born and raised in this county,

AT the head of the local column of the Republican, we find the following:

"The Republican has the largest circulation of any paper published in Columbia county, and is consequently the very best advertising medium!"

It is considered more disreputable to publish a falsehood than to communicate it orally, because publication is a deliberate act, and gives it a wider circulation. The above we pronounce to be untrue, and in token of our sincerity in claiming several hundred larger circulation, we propose to our cotemporary the publication of the actual number of subscribers by a Committee to be mutually appointed. Either come to time, or haul down your sign.

WE are anxious that the present course of lectures should prove a success; not because we are in part responsible for pecuniary loss that may ensue; but for the good name of our town. Numbering our population by thousands, aiming to be a leading town on all literary matters, having in our midst an unusually large number of ministers, teachers, and persons of literary taste, it is singular indeed if we cannot support annually a course of lectures. The Committee,—self-appointed it is true, yet acting from the best of motives for the general good of the whole community—have placed the price of admission within the reach of all our citizens, and there is no excuse for any staying away. If the enterprise is not a losing one, it is the intention the following season to procure the highest class of talent in the nation. For this reason, more than any other, we urge our friends to patronize the present course.

NO. XCII.

AFTER SQUIRRELS.

THERE are doubtless many inhabitants of the county of Columbia, more especially in Bloomsburg and the surrounding towns, who have never experienced the pleasure which its wooded hills afford, of squirrel shooting. Fortune having thrown an opportunity within my grasp, I seized it and found indeed that it was worth the grasping. The townships of Benton and Sugarloaf were the ones which offered themselves. It was in the most delicious of all seasons, the clear, cool, bright Autumn, with the leaves just beginning to put on their gorgeous coloring, decking themselves as it were for their death so soon to follow, when the keen breath of northern winds should rob them of their beauties and tear them dry and lifeless from the boughs. I had the good fortune to have several tramps through the woods after the nimble eaters of nuts, but the proceedings of one day will suffice. Fancy a clear star lit sky, a bracing air just cool enough to flush the cheeks and brighten the eye, and to act as a most admirable appetizer, as is apparent at the breakfast table, after our ablutions are performed. The horses having been fed, guns and ammunition looked up and everything prepared for a start, we go into the dining room for breakfast. We eat by candle-light, as it is but four o'clock and we intend to be many miles away before the "God of Day" makes his appearance over the hill tops. Ready at last, we rattle away over anything but smooth roads, our cigars leaving a thin blue line of smoke floating upon the perfectly still air. A drive of about eight miles brings us to our place of destination, and, the horses having been stabled and cared for, we make for tall timber. Slowly and cautiously we move along, after entering the woods, avoiding dry leaves and drier sticks, keeping a sharp look out to right and left, on ground and treetop, for these bright eyed little forest rangers are as keen of sight as a hawk and as timorous as an antelope; a careless step—a cracking of dry twigs—and presto! they are gone. And where? Ah! that is indeed a difficult question to answer; perhaps on that bough of the neighboring oak-perhaps down the trunk to the ground—and perhaps that hole in the very top of yonder tall tree is the hiding-place. Waiting, watching, listening, we slowly move along; at last there is a sound; it is the short, sharp bark of the gray squirrel, called by the farmers in the neighborhood the "big squirrel," (a term by the way applied indifferently to either gray or black squirrel.) Now, indeed, the excitement increases; there is more need than ever of cautiousness. At length we reach the spot whence the noise proceeded; we search the tree-tops, and examine all the grayish looking knobs upon the boughs and yet no squirrel is visible. Still keeping perfectly quiet, we wait for a movement, and here it is at last. His squirrel-ship who had suspended his breakfasting for a moment, resumes operations; a movement of his body, a pause of a second or two, a sharp crack, and his last meal has been eaten; he comes tumbling from limb to limb and finally drops upon the mossy ground, dead—with a rifle ball through his head. Cruel perhaps it may seem as you lift the pretty little creature from the ground, his black eye not yet dimmed, but as you are not in the woods for moralizing—and are for squirrel shooting, you pocket this first one for the day and proceed. Many and vexations are the impediments we meet during the day; now it is that a squirrel has chosen for himself a tree around whose trunk the young saplings and underbrush cluster so thickly as to render the top of the tree invisible, and after wearisome stretching of necks and straining of eyes, we give it up in despair; at another time, the squirrel, whose color is almost exactly that of the bark to which he clings, has so securely hidden himself in the fork of a limb, that not even a hair of his long bushy tail can be discovered. They are cunning fellows these squirrels, but men are more cunning than they. After having satisfied ourselves that he is yet in the tree we commence a regular siege. The tree is jarred by heavy stones thrown against it, but with no effect. At last we espy a heavy rail, and this is brought into action as a battering ram. This proves too much for the squirrel's equanimity and he springs upward seeking a securer place of refuge. Foolish little fellow! had you but remained where you were, you might have bidden defiance, as it is, the movement has cost you your life. The unerring rifle has done its work and "Bunny's" pleasures and troubles are at an end.

To a person who has never enjoyed a day in the woods, spent in this manner, it would be difficult to explain what an imense amount of excitement there is in it. Perhaps the absolute quietness and caution which must be observed at first, followed by the rifle shot, the eager rush for the game, and the temporary release from silence, may, by very contrast, have something to do with this. To any lover of Nature such a day is a perfect treat in itself. There is no season when woodland scenery is so perfectly captivating as during the Autumn. The eyes never weary of watching the play of light and shadow on the hill sides, colored as they are with the brilliantly tinted foliage crimson, yellow, purple, red, brown and green and glittering in the early morn with liquid jewels of a thousand hues. The air, too, is of that perfectly clear character which belongs alone to this season. The hazy, smoky atmosphere of the Indian Summer has not yet commenced, and distant objects seem to be drawn closer, whilst those nearer at hand are seen with startling distinctness. I remember myself to have estimated the distance of a certain mountain at less than five miles—I afterwards found that it was somewhat over thirty! As a cure for dyspepsia, sleepless nights, indigestion and general laziness, I do not believe there is a medicine known to the Medical fraternity which will prove so perfect a cure, as a week or two spent in the pure air of the mountains, where the day begins with breakfast before sunrise and ends only with the failing light. Try it oh! disbelievers. It is not necessary to go out of Columbia county. There are as well wooded hills as lovely scenery and as hospitable inhabitants here as you will find anywhere. My own experience proves to me that I can never express my own thanks sufficiently for the courtesies I received.

Although not coming within the scope of this article I would mention another kind of sport (so called) in which I indulged, I will not say enjoyed myself, on several occasions, and which I regret to say, for the sake of those who are fond of it, if any there be, I did not thoroughly appreciate. At different times rumors had reached us at Benton, of the abundance of 'Coons to be had in various localities. We visited those localities with commendable regularity, but up to the present writing the 'Coons have not put in an appearance. The general summing up which I have made is, that it is excessively hard work for a remarkably small remuneration. To hunt 'Coons properly it is necessary that you should utterly forget all thoughts of yourself and of your comfort; you should be prepared to wade creeks of unknown depths, with slippery moss-covered stones at the bottom, where if you fell the chances were against your ever getting up again, to sound the depths of mud holes, to clamber over rocks, stumps, logs fences, and any and all impediments which may come in your way; to tempt Providence by crawling and scrambling up nearly perpendicular hill-sides, to run at full speed through woods with which you are not acequainted; to fall down and get up again in time to prevent the man behind you from trampling you down; to follow a lot of irresponsible dogs wherever they choose to bark (which they generally do as far away as possible) and, after all this, to return home 'Coonless, wet, muddy, with scratched face and hands, torn clothes, tired limbs and, if your experience is like mine, with most unmitigated disgust for 'Coon hunting, which is by the way an entirely different thing from 'Coon catching.

A SPLENDID ASSORTMENT of Dry Goods, Groceries, Queensware, Glass ware and House furnishing goods generally, has just been received by WOLF & BARTON, at their new store on Main Street, below Iron St. Every thing fresh and new and of the best description. The very latest patterns of dress goods. Call at once

LAST year the pasting and folding of documents at Harrisburg, for ninety days cost $37,000. This year a responsible firm offered to do it for $7,000 and the proposition only received two Radical votes in the Senate. Reason—the Radical ex-members are seeking and receiving positions as paste slingers! Think of it tax-payers!

THE Commonwealth vs George S. Twitchell, Jr. John Campbell, 740 Sansom St., Philadelphia, has in press and nearly ready for publication, the full report of this exciting murder trial. No pains have been spared to make it in every respect complete, and full as the trial was of most interesting points of law and scientific information it will be a most valuable book of reference. The work will be handsomely bound and contain 600 pages. Price $6.00.

FOR perfect ease and comfort commend us to well fitting clothes. There is no such thing as enjoying life with one's garments either too tight for easy breathing or so loose as to appear as if they had been put on with a pitch fork. Clothes of either kind wear badly, and look worse. Chemberlin has, however, obviated the necessity for such dressing. His suits are admirable; easy, well fitting, elegant. He is well deserving of the support of the public, and we trust his already large custom may be still more increased.

ON the night of September 28th 1867, there were stolen from the fire-proof safe, in the Commissioner's office, Bloomsburg, $535,00 in Greenbacks, United States Bonds, and Currency.—Immediately upon the theft being discovered, information thereof was given to Senator Buckalew, Mr. Neal, Mr. J. P. Tustin, Cashier of the Bank, Mr. C. R. Paxton, Mr. John K. Grotz and other gentlemen; and upon full consideration it was determined to keep the whole matter quiet, for reasons then and now entirely satisfactory.

The County Treasurer, the Commissioners, and the County Auditors were in due time notified of the facts. It was well known to all the above officials, that originally there were duplicate keys to the office door, and to the safe door, and that but one key to each of the doors was delivered to Mr. Krickbaum, when he was put in charge of the office; and they fully concurred in the conclusions arrived at as above stated. These reasons are still in full force, and except the bare facts, which were then known to many people, it is not yet deemed prudent to state what was and what is still being done to detect the thief.

PROF. ADAMS' READINGS.—In accordance with the published programme, Prof. Adams, on last Friday night, at the Court House, gave a selection of readings from the poets. His first selection was two scenes from the "Merchant of Venice," which was exceedingly well read and the various characters truthfully personated.

The next selection was of a humorous cast.—"Darius Green and his Flying Machine," by J. T. Trowbridge, of Boston. This piece alone was worth the price of admission. The next piece was "The Vagabonds," by the same author and was full of feeling and pathos.

Act V., Scene I.—"The grave diggers"—probably Shakspeare's masterpiece, was then read, and those who never had seen Booth act it, found unknown beauties in the tragedy. This was followed by "Parrhasius and the Captive;" "The Letter,"—a delineation of Irish character,—and "The Ghost," which, however solemn in sound, proved to be a piece of much humor. The audience though not large, was select and appreciative, and went to their homes fully satisfied that they had got the worth of their money.

CLOTHES BY MACHINERY.

The undersigned would respectfully call the attention of the public, to his new and approved method of making clothes by a system based upon mathematical principles, which renders it impossible to be otherwise than perfectly accurate

He claims for this method the following advantages.

FIRST.

Perfect accuracy.

SECOND.

A saving of two thirds of the time usually taken to cut out the cloth.

THIRD.

Ability to measure any figure so as to insure a good fit.

FOURTH.

That it does away with the necessity of being measured more than once, as often is the case from the misapprehension or mistake of a measurer.

He would urge the public to give it a trial, as he is satisfied that it will give perfect satisfaction. He will be happy to exhibit and explain its working at any time to visitors.

SCHUTZE & LUDOLFF,

(ESTABLISHED IN 1851.)

Manufacturers of the new patent MONITOR PLATE PIANO FORTE, patented February 28th, 1866. Warranted for five years.

Warerooms, 452 Broome-St., New York.

The patent Monitor Plate Pianos by their peculiar construction are superior to all others, and their merit consists in the wrest plank being supported by the iron frame, allowing a larger space for the sounding board than is possessed by any other kind of Piano. By this means the quantity as well as the quality of the tone is largely increased.

These Pianos have been pronounced by the best judges to be unrivalled for

POWER AND SWEETNESS OF TONE,

Easy and agreeable touch and beauty of finish.

Most flattering certificates of excellence from Thalberg, Gottschalk, Strakosch, Vieuxtemps, and a large number of the most distinguished Professors and Amateurs. From long experience and superior facilities for Manufacturing, we are enabled to offer our pianos at as low prices as are asked by inferior makers.

ONE HUNDREDTH VOLUME,

On January 1st, 1869,

LITTELL'S LIVING AGE

Enters upon its One Hundreth Volume.

It has received the commendation of Judge Story, Chancellor Kent, President Adams, Historians Sparks, Prescott, Bancroft, and Ticknor, Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, and many others; and it admittedly "continues to stand at the head of its class."

It is issued every Saturday, giving fifty-two numbers of sixty-four pages each, or more than THREE THOUSAND double-column octavo pages of reading matter yearly; enabling it to present a full resume (such as is attempted by no other periodical) of the valuable literature of the day, embracing the best Reviews, Criticisms, Tales, Poetry, Literary Scientific, Biographical, Historical, and Political Information, gathered from the whole body of English periodical literature and from the pens of the ablest living writers. It is a work which commends itself to every one who has a taste for the best literature of the Magazines and Reviews, or who care to keep up with the events of the time.

Extracts from Notices.

From Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, May, 1867.

"Were I, in view of all the competitors that are now in the field, to choose, I should certainly choose THE LIVING AGE. Nor is there, in any library that I know of, so much instructive and entertaining reading in the same number of volumes."

From the New-York Times.

"The taste, judgment, and wise tact, displayed in the selection of articles are above all praise, because they have never been equalled."

From the Philadelphia Inquirer.

A constant reader of "Littell" is ever enjoying literary advantages obtainable through no other source."

From the Philadelphia Press, 1868.

"THE LIVING AGE continues to stand at the head of its class."

From the Richmond Wig.

"If a man were to read Littell's magazine regularly, and read nothing else, he would be well informed on all prominent subjects in the general field of human knowledge."

From the Chicago Daily Republican.

"LITTELL'S LIVING AGE is the oldest, and by far the best, concentration of choice periodical literature printed in this country. It occupies a field filled by no other periodical; and its ample pages constitute a repertoire of the most admirably-selected miscellany from the entire range of the best home and foreign journals and magazines. The subscriber to Littell finds himself in possession, at the end of the year, of four large volumes of such reading as can be obtained in no other form, and comprising selections from every department of science, art, philosophy, and belles-lettres. Those who desire a thorough compendium of all that is admirable and noteworthy in the literary world will be spared the trouble of wading through the sea of reviews and magazines published abroad; for they will find the essence of all compacted and concentrated here."

Auerbach's New Romance.

In the number of The Living Age for Nov. 21st last was begun, by arrangement with the Boston publishers of Berthold Auerbach's works, a new Romance by that most eminent of living German novelists, entitled "THE COUNTRY-HOUSE ON THE RHINE," which is now appearing serially in Germany. Auerbach's last work, "ON THE HEIGHTS," was pronounced "the most remarkable novel that has come to us from the home of Goethe during the present century;" and John G. Saxe pronounced it "one of the few great works of the age." The new work will appear from week to week in "The Living Age" until completed.

The Living Age free to January, 1869.

The publishers offer to new subscribers remitting to them for the year 1869, the weekly numbers of "The Living Age," from the beginning of Auerbach's story to the end of 1868, free of charge.

The Living Age is published weekly at $8, a year, free of postage.

An extra copy sent gratis to any one getting up a Club of Five New Subscribers.

DOMESTIC ECONOMY!

CAMPILLION CARPET!

A new, cheap, durable, healthy, and Beautiful

FLOOR COVERING!

A substitute for oil-cloth at one-third the cost.

This carpet is produced by a peculiar combination of strong, heavy paper, printed in ornamental colors, and coated with a tough, elastic, water proof enamel which receives the water, protects the colors and paper endures washing, and renders the carpet bright and beautiful in the extreme. Its advantages are as follows:—

Its cost renders it available to all classes; It is exceedingly smooth and glossy, and it accumulates next to no dust; It does not require to be taken up and cleaned like other carpet, and thus saves much labor and trouble; By re-coating with the Campillion Enamel occasionally as the case may require, (which costs but a trifle,) it will last indefinitely, even an age, and always appear new and bright; In its use no reliance whatever is placed upon the paper for wear, but exclusively upon the water-proof coating, the figured paper being used only to secure the colors. Paper has recently been used for a variety of purposes, even for trunks, roofs, flour bags and wearing apparel, but the first attempt, either in Europe or America, to convert it into carpet or floor covering, all concede it to be an entire success!

We have purchased the right for columbia county and can furnish the carpet to merchants at manufacturers prices.

You are invited to call and examine the goods at our store. M'KELVY, NEAL & CO.

LOOK, READ, AND LEARN,

THAT THE

Great Shoshonees Remedy!

OF THE CELEBRATED INDIAN

DR. LEWIS JOSHEPHUS,

of the distinguished Tribe of Shoshonees, Columbia Territory is now for sale in the Union.

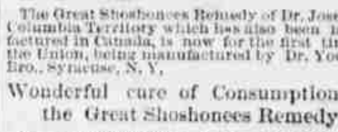
This all possessing great remedy, is warranted and in broad and emphatic language, we can safely say, may be relied upon to make a permanent cure of all diseases of the Throat, Lungs, Liver, Kidneys, Digestive Organs, etc., As well as scrofula, the various skin diseases, Humors, and all impurity of the blood, excepting the third stage of Consumption.

In Canada where this great remedy has been in use for a short time it has indeed effected some of the most marvelous cures ever recorded in the annals of historical medicine. Such being the case in addition to its former renown in Columbia Territory we defy humanity to dispute the fact that this Great Shoshonees Remedy, is the remedy of remedies of the 19th Century, and the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity.

Price of the Remedy in large pints, $1.50.

Manufactured by Dr. Young & Bros., at Syracuse, N. Y.

For sale by all dealers in Medicine.



The Great Shoshonees Remedy of Dr. Josephus, Columbia Territory which has also been manufactured in Canada, is now for the first time in the Union, being manufactured by Dr. Young & Bro., Syracuse, N. Y.

Wonderful cure of Consumption by the Great Shoshonees Remedy.

Messrs. Chamberlain & Co.,—Gentlemen. I, Wilson Storms, make oath and say, I feel anxious to let you know what the Great Shoshonees Remedy has effected for me. My wife was afflicted with consumption, and died. I was also afflicted with the same disease and after her death, I continued sinking just as she had done. I had very severe night sweats, coughed nearly all night and every night, could not sleep unless a little toward morning; I raised over a quart of matter every 24 hours, and severe pain in the left lung, etc., etc., and was greatly debilitated; in fact I was going as fast as I could. I was taking medicine from a regular physician, but it did not even relieve my cough. I went to the village one day about a quarter of a mile, which took me to go and come, about two hours; while there I saw Squire Wellington, and happened to say to him, "I wish you could give me something to relieve my cough." He said "there is a Great Indian Remedy just introduced. Dr. Barker has it for sale, and I believe it will cure you."

I took his advice, and brought a bottle home with me, took a tea-spoonful at once, which I felt through my whole system. At night a table-spoonful and rested well at night and continued to rest well every night. The cough, night-sweats, raising of Matter, pain in the lung, etc., gradually left me, and I got hearty and strong. I took only three bottles, I am not taking it now and I am as hearty and as well as I ever was in my life. My sister-in-law was with me for a while, who was afflicted with liver complaint, she has taken the remedy and is well. This certificate you may show the world if you please.

The Good Woman.

"WHY," said he to himself, "could Mirtis not restore my spirits, with all her kindness, while Lirette has done it with a single little word? Two is one too many—Lirette is enough for me." On the other hand, Mirtis saw plainly that her brother made a difference between her and Lirette. "We are not enough here, being three," said she. "I ought to have another, brother, who would love me as much as Finfin does my sister."

Lirette was now twelve years old, Mirtis thirteen, and Finfin fifteen, when one evening, after supper, they were all seated in front of the cottage with the Good Woman, who instructed them in a hunred agreeable things. The youthful Finfin, seeing Lirette playing with the jewel on her neck, asked his dear mamma what it was for? She replied that she had found one on each of them when they fell into her hands. Lirette then said, "If mine would but do as I tell it, I should be glad. "And what would you have it do?" asked Finfin. "You will see," said she; and then taking the end of the ribbon, "Little cherry," she continued, "I should like to have a beautiful house of roses."

At the same moment they heard a slight noise behind them. Mirtis turned around first, and uttered a loud cry; she had cause; for instead of the cottage of the Good Woman, there appeared one of the most charming that could possibly be seen. It was not lofty, but the roof was formed of roses that would bloom in winter as well as in summer. They entered it, and found the most agreeable apartments, furnished magnificently. In the midst of each room was a rose-tree in full flower, in a precious vase; and in the first which they entered, they found the partridge Finfin had lost, which flew on to his shoulder and gave him a hundred caresses.

"Is it only to wish?" said Mirtis; and taking the ribbon of her jewel in her hand, "Little medlar," she continued, "give us a garden more beautiful than our own." Hardly had she finished speaking, when a garden was presented to their view of extraordinary beauty, and which everything that could be imagined to delight the senses appeared in the highest perfection.

The young folks began immediately to run through the beautiful alleys, amongst the flower-beds and round about the fountains.

"Do you wish something brother," said Lirette. "But I have nothing to wish for, said he; "except to be loved by you as much as you are loved by me." "Oh," replied she, "my heart can satisfy you on that point. That does not depend on your almond." "Well, then," said Finfin, "almond, little almond, I wish that a great forest should rise near here, in which the King's son shall come to hunt, and fall in love with Mirtis."

"What have I done to you," replied the beautiful girl. "I do not wish to leave the innocent life which we lead." "You are right, my child," said the Good Woman," and I say that this King is a cruel usurper, who has put to death the rightful sovereign and all his family: perhaps the son may be no better than his father."

The Good Woman,* however, was quite astonished at the strange wishes of these wonderful children, and knew not what to think of them. When night was come, she retired into the house of roses, and in the morning she found that there was a large forest close to the house. It formed a fine hunting-ground for our young shepherds. Finfin often hunted down in it deer, harts, and roebucks.

He gave a fawn whiter than snow to the lovely Lirette; it followed her as the partridge followed Finfin; and when they were separated for a short period, they wrote to each other, and sent their notes by these messengers. It was the prettiest thing in the world.

The family lived thus tranquilly occupied with different employments, according to the seasons. They always attended to their flocks, but in the summer their occupations were most pleasant. They hunted much in the winter; they had bows and arrows, and sometimes went such long distances that they returned, with slow steps and almost frozen, to the house of roses.

The Good Woman would receive them by a large fire; she did not know which to begin to warm first. "Lirette my daughter Lirette," she would say, "place your little feet here." And taking Mirtis in her arms,—"Mirtis, my child," continued she, "give me your beautiful hands to warm; and you my son Finfin, come nearer." Then placing them all three on a sofa, she would pay them every attention in the most charming and gentle manner.

Thus they passed their days in peace and happiness. The Good Woman wondered at the sympathy between Finfin and Lirette, for Mirtis was as beautiful, and had no less amiable qualities; but certainly Finfin did not love her as fervently as the other. "If they are brother and sister, as I believe," said the Good Woman, "by their matchless beauty, what shall I do? They are so similar in everything, that they must assuredly be of the same blood. If it be so, this affection is very dangerous; if not, I might render it legitimate by letting them marry; and they both love me so much, that their union would ensure joy and peace to my declining days."

In her uncertainty, she had forbidden Lirette, who was fast advancing to womanhood, to be ever alone with Finfin, and for better security she had ordered Mirtis to be always with them. Lirette obeyed her with perfect submission, and Mirtis did also as she had commanded her. The Good Woman had heard speak of a clever fairy, and resolved to go in search of her, and endeavor to enlighten herself respecting the history of these children.

One day, when Lirette was slightly indisposed, and Mirtis and Finfin were out hunting, the Good Woman thought it a convenient opportunity to go in search of Madam Tu-tu, for such was the name of the fairy. She left Lirette therefore at the House of Roses; but she had not got far on her way before she met Lirette's fawn, which was going towards the forest, and at the same time saw Finfins partridge coming from it. They joined each other close to her. It was not without astonishment that she saw round the neck of each a little ribbon, with a paper attached. She called the partridge, which flew to her, and taking the paper from it, she read these lines:—

To Lirette, dear bird, repair—
Absent from her sight I languish—
All my love to her declare—
Secret joy and silent anguish.
Much too cold her heart, I fear,
Such apassion e'er to know.
Were I to her but half as dear,
No greater bliss I'd crave below.

"What words!" cried the Good Woman,—"what phrases! Simple friendship does not express itself with so much warmth." Then she stopped the fawn, which came to lick her hand, she unfastened the paper from its neck, opened it and found in it these words:—

The sun is setting—you are absent yet,
Although you left me by its earliest light!
Return, dear Finfin; surely you forget—
Without you, day to me is endless night!

"Just as they did when I was in the world," continued the Good Woman; "who could have taught Lirette so much in the desert? What can I do to cut betimes the root of so pernicious an evil?" "Eh, Madam, what are you so anxious about?" said the partridge; "let them alone—those who conduct them know better than you."

The Good Woman remained speechless: she knew well that the partridge spoke by means of supernatural art. The notes fell from her hands in her fright; the fawn and the partridge picked them up: the one ran and the other flew; and the partridge called so often "Tu-tu" that the Good Woman thought it must be the powerful fairy who had caused it to speak. She recovered herself a little after this reflection but not feeling equal to the journey she had undertaken, she retraced her steps to the House of Roses.

Meanwhile Finfin and Mirtis had hunted the live long day, and, being tired, they had placed their game on the ground, and sat down to rest under a tree, where they fell asleep.

The King's son also hunted that day in the forest. He missed his suite, and came to a place where our young shepherd and shepherdess were reposing. He contemplated them for some time with wonder. Finfin had made a pillow of his game-bag, and the head of Mirtis reclined on the breast of Finfin.

The Prince thought Mirtis so beautiful, that he precipitately dismounted. from his horse to examine her features with more attention. He judged, by their scrips and the simplicity of their apparel, that they were only some shepherd children. He sighed from grief. having already sighed from love, and this love, even, was followed in an instant by jealousy. The position in which he found these young people made him believe that such familiarity could only result from the affection which united them.

In this uneasy state of mind, not being able to tolerate their prolonged repose, he touched the handsome Finfin with his spear. He started up, seeing a man before him, he passed his hand over the face of Mirtis, and awoke her, calling her "sister," a name which dissipated in a moment the alarm of the young Prince.

Mirtis rose up, quite astonished; she had never seen any one but Finfin. The young Prince was the same age as herself. He was superbly attired, and had a face full of charming expression.

Farmer's Department.

PUBLIC ROADS.—In this country a load for two horses is obout sixteen hundred pounds; four horses, thirty-five hundred pounds. Occasionally we see a six-horse team with from five to six tons. These loads are placed upon wagons that are built of the strongest wood to be found in the country, and heavily ironed. They weigh from thirteen hundred to three thousand pounds Light carriages driven over the same roads are capable of making from four to six miles an hour, provided the horse is a good walker, and understands picking his way through mudholes, over deep ruts and stones, The carriages are built to stand this gait for two or three years.

In England the load for a single horse is from three to four tons. The cart or dray is not half the weight of a wagon to carry the same load here. The speed is very much greater. The reason is: Here our roads are generally in a bad condition. They are made by plowing the earth along the sides, and throwing it up towards the centre. We suppose the idea is to make the top act as a roof for the water to run off from. The small stones are thrown up in the fence corners, and the large ones left in their old beds. The result is that the mud of which the road bed is composed becomes soft and cut up into gullies, gutters, mudholes and ruts, making anything but a convenient and comfortable road to drive over, even without a load while in England the roads are covered with broken stones and kept in good condition, with a smooth surface and a foundation so hard that the heaviest loads, do not injure it, enabling the carter to carry heavier loads, make better time, with less wear to his horses and wagon.

The amount of money paid for extra horses to do a given amount of carting, the extra feed, the wear and tear of harness and wagons, and time lost in getting the repairs done, to say nothing of the inconvenience of being stuck in the mud, or compelled to lie idle in bad weather, in five years would pay for taking the loose stones from the fence corners and the adjoining fields, placing them in the road and breaking them so as to form a solid and smoth road bed.

Some farmers are so wedded to the old condition of mud that they have never attempted to make a clean smooth road between their houses and barns. Their hitching place at the house is a mudhole; their road to their carriage house is a mortar bed for three or four months of a year, and of course their horses and carriages are either dirty, or a large amount of time is wasted in cleaning them, and the paint of the carriages badly injured by the operation All this could be remedied by making a good broken stone road and a level hard bottom around the hitching post.

HOW HE DREW IT.—Lately a gentleman sat down to draw a deed and began with "Know one woman by these presents."

"You are wrong," said a bystander; "it ought to be: Know all men."

"Very well," answered the other, "if one woman knows it, all men will of course."

DRUGS & MEDICINES.

HOOFLAND'S

GERMAN BITTERS.

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS,

AND

Hoofland's German Tonic.

Prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson,

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

The Great Remedies

FOR ALL DISEASES OF THE

LIVER, STOMACH, or

DIGESTIVE ORGANS.

Hoofland's German Bitters

Is compounded of the pure juices, (or as they are medicinally termed, Extracts) of Roots, Herbs and Barks, making a preparation, highly concentrated, and entirely free from Alcoholic admixture of any kind.

Hoofland's German Tonic,

Is a combination of all the ingredients of the Bitters, with the purest quality of Santa Cruz Rum, Orange, etc., making one of the most pleasant and agreeable remedies ever offered to the public.

Those preferring a Medicine free from Alcoholic admixture, will use

Hoofland's German Bitters.

In cases of nervous depression, when some alcoholic stimulus is necessary,

Hoofland's German Tonic

should be used.

The Bitters or the Tonic are both equally good, and contain the same medicinal virtues. The stomach, from a variety of causes, such as Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Nervous Debility, etc., is very apt to have its functions deranged. The result of which is, that the patient suffers from several or more of the following diseases:

Constipation, Flatulence, Inward Piles Fulness of Blood to the Head, Acidity of the Stomach, Nausea, Heartburn, Disgust for Food, Fulness or Weight in the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sinking or Fluttering at the Pit of the Stomach, Swimming of the Head, Hurried or Difficult Breathing, Fluttering at the Heart, Choking or Suffocating Sensations when in a Lying Posture, Dimness of Vision, Dots or Webs before the Sight, Dull Pain in the Head, Deficiency of Perspiration, Yellowness of the Skin and Eyes, Pain in the Side, Back, Chest, Limbs, etc., Sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Constant Imaginings of Evil, and Great Depression of Spirits.

These remedies will effectually cure Liver Complaint, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Chronic or Nervous Debility, Chronic Diarrhoea, Disease of the Kidneys, and all Diseases arising from a Disordered Liver, Stomach, or Intestines.

DEBILITY,

RESULTING FROM ANY CAUSE WHATEVER;
PROSTRATION OF THE SYSTEM,
INDUCED BY SEVERE LABOR, HARDSHIPS, EXPOSURE, FEVERS, ETC.

There is no medicine extant equal to these remedies in such cases. A tone and vigor is imparted to the whole System, the Appetite is Strengthened, food is enjoyed, the stomach digests promptly, the blood is purified, the complexion becomes sound and healthy, the yellow tinge is eradicated from the eyes, a bloom is given to the cheeks, and the weak and nervous invalid becomes a strong and healthy being.

Persons Advanced in Life,

And feeling the hand of time weighing heavily upon them, with all its attendant ills, will find in the use of this BITTERS, or the TONIC, an elixir that will instil new life into their veins, restore in a measure the energy and ardor of more youthful days, build up their shrunken forms, and give health and happiness to their remaining years.

NOTICE.

It is a well-established fact that fully one-half of the female portion of our population are seldom in the enjoyment of good health; or, to use their own expression, "never feel well." They are languid, devoid of all energy, extremely nervous, and have no appetite.

To this class of persons the BITTERS, or the TONIC, is especially recommended.

WEAK AND DELICATE CHILDREN

Are made strong by the use of either of these remedies. They will cure every case of MARASMUS, without fail.

Thousands of certificates have accumulated in the hands of the proprietor, but space will allow of the publication of but a few. Those, it will be observed, are men of note and of such standing that they must be believed.

TESTIMONIALS.

Hon. Geo. W. Woodward,

Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pa., writes:

Philadelphia, March 16, 1867.

"I find 'Hoofland's German Bitters' is a good tonic, useful in diseases of the digestive organs, and of great benefit in cases of debility, and want of nervous action in the system.

"Yours truly,

"GEO. W. WOODWARD."

Hon. James Thompson,

Judge of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

Philadelphia, April 28, 1866.

"I consider 'Hoofland's German Bitters' a valuable medicine in case of attacks of Indigestion or Dyspepsia. I can certify this from my experience of it.

"Yours, with respect,

"JAMES THOMPSON."

From Rev. Joseph H. Kennard, D.D.,

Pastor of the Tenth Baptist Church, Philadelphia.

Dr. Jackson—Dear Sir: I have been frequently requested to connect my name with recommendations of different kinds of medicines, but, regarding the practice as out of my appropriate sphere, I have in all cases declined; but with a clear proof in various instances and particularly in my own family, of the usefulness of Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters, I depart for once from my usual course, to express my full conviction that, for general debility of the system, and especially for Liver Complaint, it is a safe and valuable preparation. In some cases it may fail; but usually, I doubt not, it will be very beneficial to those who suffer from the above causes.

Yours, very respectfully,

J. H. KENNARD,

Eighth, below Coates St.

From Rev. E. D. Fendall,

Assistant Editor Christian Chronicle, Philadelphia.

I have derived decided benefit from the use of Hoofland's German Bitters, and feel it my privilege to recommend them as a most valuable tonic to all who are suffering from general debility or from diseases arising from derangement of the liver.

Yours truly,

E. D. FENDALL.

CAUTION.

WARREN'S

IMPROVE FIRE AND WATER PROOF

FELT AND CEMENT ROOFING!

The advantages which this composition possesses are many. It is both water-tight and fire-proof. It is not affected by heat or cold. It can be applied to an almost perfectly flat roof, one inch to the foot being all that is required. It is easily and quickly repaired. Its cost is less than any other fire-proof roof now in use. Testimonials from all parts of the country as to its durability, security and cheapness will be shown by

JOHN W. KRAMER,
June 26'68. Agent, Bloomsburg, Pa.

A fine specimen of the roofing can be seen at W. B. Koons' new house on Fifth Street,

J. HEATHCOTE & COMPANY

BOILER WORKS,

CORNER OF WEST STREET & BLACK HORSE ALLEY

Having increased our facilities in the way of shop room, machinery, &c., we are prepared to manufacture LOCOMOTIVE, FLUE, and all kinds of STEAM BOILERS, SMOKE-STACKS, TANKS, SHEET-IRON WORK, &c., all work promptly done by competent men, at short notice, and

SPECIAL ATTENTION PAID TO REPAIRS.

Your attention is specially called to the members of our firm all being Practical Boiler Makers. Mr. HEATHCOTE has had an experience of over thirty years in the manufacture of all kinds of Steam Boilers; and from our long experience we are fully aware of the necessity of a well-made and sufficiently large boiler, to secure not only safety but satisfactory results; and we shall give our customers only the best quality of material, as regards material, workmanship, and ample heating surface, and feel confident that we can render satisfaction, and at prices fully as low as any other builders using the same quality of material.

We would call the attention of Railway Companies to our facilities for doing LOCOMOTIVE WORK, EITHER REPAIRS OR NEW, as we have the practical experience of one of the firm to always give his personal attention.

We are also prepared to do all kinds of Steam Fittings, such as Heating Public and Private Buildings, Factories, fitting up Steam Boilers, &c.

Constantly on hand all kinds of STEAM FITTINGS, STEAM AND WATER GUAGES STEAM PIPES, and all fittings connected with the business.

Also, Castings of all kinds, Boiler Fronts, Grates, Stoves, Plows, and all work done in the general foundry business.

Respectfully soliciting your orders, we are

Yours very truly, J. HEATHCOTE & CO.

FARMERS!!

TRY THE

ALTA VELA PHOSPHATE.

It contains three per cent. of Ammonia, an ample quantity to give activity without injury to the vegetation, and a large percentage of soluble Bone Phosphate of Lime, together with Potash and Soda, the essential elements of a COMPLETE MANURE. The increased sales to Farmers of 10 tons in 1866, to 3000 tons in 1867, during which time it gave the highly satisfactory results is a sure guarantee of its value. Price, $56 per ton of 10 bags 200 lbs each. Send for a pamphlet. Address

VEGETABLE AMBROSIA

IS THE MIRACLE OF THE AGE!

Gray-Headed People have their locks restored by it to the dark, lustrous, silken tresses of youth, and are happy!

Young People, with light, faded or red Hair, have these unfashionable colors changed to a beautiful auburn, and rejoice!

People whose heads are covered with Dandruff and Humors, use it, and have clean coats and clear and healthy scalps!

Bald-Headed Veterans have their remaining locks tightened, and the bare spots covered with a luxuriant growth of Hair, and dance for joy!

Young Gentlemen use it because it is richly perfumed!

Young Ladies use it because it keeps their Hair in place!

Everybody must and will use it, because it is the cleanest and best article in the market!
